Privacy Statement

FACTS	WHAT DOES CARY STREET PARTNERS DO WITH YOUR PERSONAL INFORMATION?
Why?	Financial companies choose how they share your personal information. Federal laws, and certain state privacy laws, give consumers the right to limit some but not all sharing. Federal law also requires us to tell you how we collect, share, and protect your personal information. Please read this notice carefully to understand what we do.
What?	To help the government fight the funding of terrorism and money laundering activities, federal law requires all financial institutions to obtain, verify, and record information that identifies each person who opens an account. What this means for you: When you open an account, we will ask for your name, address, date of birth, and other information that will allow us to identify you. We may also ask to see your driver's license or other identifying documents. The types of personal information we collect and share depend on the product(s) or service(s) you have with us. This information can include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Your account opening documentation, applications or other forms, which include name, address, phone number, social security number and date of birth;</li><li>• Your potential or actual transactions with our affiliates, others or us;</li><li>• Information, such as credit history or employment status, from non-affiliated third parties;</li><li>• Information for special services offered by a third party, such as bill payment requests; and</li><li>• For Investment Banking engagements, information we receive from you and your directors, officers, employees and agents about your business including its finances, technology, processes and customers.</li></ul>
How?	All financial companies need to share customers' personal information to run their everyday businesses. In the section below, we list the reasons financial companies can share their customers' personal information; the reasons Cary Street Partners chooses to share and whether you can limit this sharing. In addition, a transfer or disclosure of customers' personal information occurs in connection with certain M&A (mergers & acquisitions) transactions, including prior to consummation of the transaction. Any such transfer or disclosure is only for purposes of integration, planning or consummation of the M&A transaction.
